

Contents

	page
Preface	1
Chapter 1
Management accounting as a science: from cost-benefit analyses of productions to strategic planning for uncertainty	7
1.1. Introduction	7
1.2. The relationship and roles of accounting and management accounting	8
1.2.1. The old and new management accounting	9
1.3. Theoretical frameworks in management accounting	13
1.4. The evolution of the postmodern period of management accounting	17
1.5. Concluding remarks	19
Chapter 2
Issues management process and model	21
2.1. Introduction	21
2.2. The decisional process and the role of feedback control activity	22
2.3. The sources of emerging issues	25
2.4. Different types of issues leading to different types of crisis	28
2.5. A theoretical approach: the issues management model	31
2.6. The financial pressure issues management model	46
2.6.1. Distress-induced decision-making in financial pressure issues management	49
2.6.2. The continuous scrutiny of events: a supervisory control theory approach	51
2.7. Concluding remarks	54
Chapter 3
How to plan and control when an organization is facing default	55
3.1. Introduction	55

	page
3.2. The distribution of organizational functions in the financial pressure issues management process	56
3.2.1. The role of management accounting staff in financial pressure issues management	58
3.3. Contingency theory and issues of financial pressure	64
3.4. Uncontrollable situational factors and the management accounting system	68
3.5. The controllability principle and uncontrollable situational factors	72
3.5.1. Types of uncontrollable situational factors	72
3.6. Some approaches to planning and controlling, notwithstanding uncontrollable situational factors	76
3.7. Objective instruments to control uncontrollable situational factors	77
3.7.1. Variance analysis: an elementary objective tool	77
3.7.2. Flexible performance standards	78
3.7.3. Relative performance standards	81
3.8. Subjective performance evaluations	81
3.9. Uncontrolled controllable factors	84
3.10. Concluding remarks	85
 Chapter 4
Management accounting through enterprise risk management and the early diagnosis and prevention of a crisis	87
by Felice Matozza
4.1. Introduction	87
4.2. Management accounting through enterprise risk management: the theoretical and empirical approaches to the risk management mix	88
4.3. Management accounting instruments in enterprise risk management systems	93
4.3.1. Questionnaires, surveys and brainstorming	94
4.3.2. Strengths/weaknesses/opportunities/threats (SWOT) analysis	95
4.3.3. Loss event data tracking	95
4.3.4. Scenario analysis	96
4.3.5. Event inventories	96
4.3.6. Escalation triggers	96
4.3.7. Outcome of a risk identification process	97
4.4. Risk assessment and response	97
4.5. Enterprise risk management and the global crisis	99
4.6. Concluding remarks	101
 Final comments	103
 References	107